

Laurie Hutcheson, M.S., MA: Executive Director

Laurie has over 40 years' experience in health care delivery system development and management including several years in executive roles in Massachusetts health and human services agencies, behavioral health provider organizations, and as a leader and independent consultant in both her own, and other national health care consulting firms.

In all of her work she has been passionate about assisting organizations, researchers, and agencies to provide high quality, accessible and effective services and supports to meet the varied needs of those served. Laurie has also been a tireless advocate for persons who are vulnerable and/or under-served, and always strives to ensure that individuals' views are solicited and heard. She joined LBCA following her lobular breast cancer diagnosis and is deeply committed to promoting LBCA's dual mission of educating about lobular breast cancer and promoting more ILC-targeted and inclusive clinical trials and research. She is also a research advocate with the Dana Farber/Harvard Cancer Center Breast Cancer Advocate group and has been accepted into the Project Lead class of 2020. Laurie is eager to help LBCA continue to grow and thrive.
